

Business Model

Recruit is a business that is positioned as a middleman, connecting companies that provide products and services (our clients) with the consumers who use those products and services (our users) through a diverse range of media.

We pave the way for our users to make better decisions and help them make more informed choices based on their needs and preferences. We do this by offering our users new, untapped discoveries and possibilities through objective assessments, allowing them to make their decisions with more confidence.

Based on solid relationships with our client base, we work with and contribute to the growth of our clients by helping them make user-oriented improvements to their products and services, and by creating opportunities for them to reach out to undiscovered users.

We are committed to creating chances to discover "Opportunities for Life," connecting users and clients through new channels.